MADRID, October 16. The Archbishop of Valencia, attended by an in-fluential deputation, acting on behalf of the insurgents lately and still in arms in that city, anwithin the limits of the Episcopal See, has just sought an interview with the officer in command of the government troops operating in the dis-trict. The Archbishop interceded in behalf of the insurgents and in support of the authorities, making terms with leniency towards them. When the deputation retired a general military council was held, at which the subject was debated. It was finally decided that the insurgents must all surrender at discretion.

MADRID, October 17. The insurgents at Valencia, after a battle yes-terday, which lasted several hours, surrendered unconditionally. The leaders disappeared, but are believed to be secreted in the city or vicinity. The government forces now occupy the city. The settings of the Cortes were suspended without the appointment of a day for reassembling. It is not known when the session will be resumed.

London, October 17.

A dispatch from Madrid contains the fellowin particulars of the surrender at Valencia: Gene-ral Prim, by telegraph, ordered the general commanding the troops before Valencia to attack the city, and yesterday morning the artiflery opened a heavy fire on the rebel positions, producing much effect and causing great damage to proper-ty. The insurgents offered to surrender on con-dition of receiving their liberty, but this was refused. The assault was then resumed with vigo until the surrender of the insurgents. The general commanding reports that the insurrection has been completely suppressed, and the troops now hold the entire city. Many houses were burned during the fight, and a large number of rebels were captured with arms in their hands. Pre-vious to the attack, the clergy exhorted the insurgents to yield, but without effect.

A Pleasant Assurance from the President of the Republic.

Mr. Robert Bonner, of New York, recently wrote to General Grant asking him to make a brief denial over his own signature of all force knowledge of the gold combination, in order to relieve himself entirely from all responsibility for the acts of others." Mr. Bonne added that those who knew General Grant personally required no disclaimer; but the public, whose minds were liable to be warped determined and persistent efforts to injure him, would be at once satisfied and quieted by such a statement. The President replied in the following letter:

-Dr. A. W. Hall, in a lecture last week be-fore the Polytechnic branch of the American institute, on the cause of auroral lights, took issue with Professor Loomis and other scient lists who attribute these phenomena to electrisists who attribute these phenomena to electrical action. Dr. Hall's theory is that the boreal display is produced by the rays of the sun, which are reflected from clouds surrounding the pole to the ice and snow of the Arct. or clouds. which are reflected from clouds surrounding the pole to the lec and snow of the Arct. cregions, and thence again reflected to the clouds, and so back and forth until h. comes within our range of vision. The glancing and flashing of the columns of light, he noids, are caused by the meiton of the clouds, an exact correspondence, being traceable, the Doctor contends, between the movements of the light and those-of the clouds. In confirmation of his theory the speaked cited the cases of similar displays of auroral light in the cast just before sunrise, and in the west just after sunset, when there are banks of clouds visible from which the sun's rays are evidently reflected. The arches or bows often seen in the north are also easily explained according to this hypothesis, while by the electrical theory they are inexplicable. The deflection of the needle and other magnetic effects, sometimes observed during an auroral display, are attributed by Dr. Hall to the fact that the state of the atmosphere most favorable for these successive reflections of sunlight from the pole is also favorable for the action of the electrical forces which produce the magnetic disturbances.

CHARLESTON, WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 20, 1869. THE YERGER CASE.

The Principles Involved-The Court Threatened-What President Grant is Told will be his Duty in a Certain Contingency.

[FROM AN OCCASIONAL CORRESPONDENT.]

WASHINGTON, October 16.
The leading topic of interest in the capital just now is the case ex parte Yerger, which has just been argued before the Supreme Court—a case familiar to the people of the South, and to the whole country, inasmuch as it involves the powe law, the trial of a civilian by military commission in time of peace, and in a State and distric where civil courts are open.

It is unnecessary to go into the details of the case. Suffice it to say that Mr. Yerger was tried by a military commission at Jackson, Mississippl, for an offence against the laws of that State, found guilty, and sentenced to suffer death. His counsel, however, brought the case before the Chief Justice of the United States, on a motion for a habeas corpus, several months ago, when, by stipulation between them and the Attorney-Gene ral of the United States, it war agreed that the motion should be argued at the present term of the court, and in the meantime the sentence imposed by the military commission should be sus ended. Mr. Yerger, however, is still in prison, nd his case is upon the docket of the highest judicial tribunal in the country, where the power o the law-making department of the government to authorize the trial of civilians in any other way nally, and, I hope, forever determined.

It will be remembered that the power claimed in this instance is found in one or more of the numerous "Reconstruction" acts, so-called, which have been passed by Congress since the close of the war, and as those acts rest upon an assumed authority on the part of the Federal Government, to render the civil power in the South subordinate and inferior to the military, the opinion of the court in this case will be of the most vital importance in judicially determining so great a question. If it shall be adjudged that Congress has no rer to establish military government and milipower to establish military government and military law, in any State or States of the Union, in time of peace, the bottom will be knrcked out of the "reconstruction" tub; and sooner or later, every act of that body, relating to the govern ment of the Southern States, will share the same fate, and the country will again be restored to its former system of free government, sustained and strengthened by a constitutional recognition of the reserved rights of the several States It requires no argument to show the illegality and unconstitutionality of the trial of civilians by inilitary tribunals in places where civil courts are open. The Constitution of the United States clear and explicit on this subject, that he who would attempt to controvert it must either be set down as a knave or a fool.

It may, however, be interesting to your readers, in forming an opinion as to the probable result of the case referred to above, to mention a similar and a very celebrated case which, is still fresh in the minds of the people, and which, on account of the great principle involved, may with truth be styled the most important case ever deter-

Lambdin P. Milligan, a citizen of the United States, and a resident and citizen of the State o Indiana, was arrested on the 3d day of October, 1864, at his home in said State, by order of Brevet Major-General Hovey, military commander of the District of Indiana, and by the same authority confined in a military prison at of near Indianaof the same month, he was placed on trial before a "military commission" convened at Indianapo-ils, by order of the said general, upon the following charges preferred by Major Burnett, Judge Advocate of the Northwestern Military Depart nent, namely:

1. Conspiracy against the Government of the United States. United States,

2. Affording aid and comfort to the rebels against the authority of the United States,

3. Inciting insurrection,

4. Disloyal practices; and,

5. Violation of the laws of war.

Without reciting the details of this trial, it is ufficient to say that Milligan was found guilty on all the charges, and sentenced to suffer death by hanging, and this sentence having been anproved, he was ordered to be executed on Friday,

On the 16th of that same May, 1865, Milligan filed his petition for a habeas corpus in the Cir-cuit Court of the United States for the District Robert Bonner, Esq:

THE GREAT VITALIZER.-THIS

title may be fairly given to a restorative which has taken precedence of all other tonic and alterative preparations for a period of nearly twenty years. During that long interval HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS may be truly asid to have enjoyed unrivalled popularity. Many preparations have been got up to compete with it, but they have all fallen into its wake or sunk that children for lath of management. first, this now world-renowned Vegetable Tonic friends, and the demand for it, based solely upon rriends, and the demand for it, based solely upon the experimental proofs of its excellence as a preventive and curative, seems to have no assignable limit. The medical profession sanction and approve its use, and it is now at the head of the class of medicines to which it belongs, the admitted, undisputed sovereign tonic of the age. The statistics of the United States Revenue Department will verify the size-man. partment will verify the statement that it stands sales as compared with those of any other pro-prietary remedy advertised on this side of the At-iantic.

The explanation of this fact may be comprised. in a few words. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS is at once the purest, the safest and the most potent of all vegetable tonics, and the beat antidote to every variety of malarious disease. Hence it is especially adapted to the present season of chilling dews and un wholesome vapors.
